Is It Time to Change Indiana's School-Year Calendar? Kelly A. Prendergast,Terry E. Spradlin,Vincent J. Palozzi,2007

In 2006, the Indiana General Assembly considered Senate Bill (SB) 194 to allow school corporations to use three full student instructional days for professional development and parent-teacher conferences. This policy brief compares Indiana's current instructional time requirements and those proposed by SB 194 with the instructional time requirements of other states as well as other countries, and compares states' policies on student dismissal for professional development activities.

Additionally, research is highlighted that examines the effects of the amount of instructional time and professional development on student achievement. The brief recommends that Indiana should: (1) maintain the 180-day minimum instructional calendar; (2) increase the number of days in the school calendar and earmark the additional days for teacher professional development; and (3) conduct research using controlled experimental designs that examine the relationship between amount of instructional time or amount of professional development time and academic achievement. (Contains 2 tables and 7 endnotes.) [This policy brief was produced by the Center for Evaluation and Education Policy, Indiana State University School of Education.].

American Universities and Colleges Praeger Publishers,2010-04-16 For well over a half century, American Universities and Colleges has been the most comprehensive and highly respected directory of four-year institutions of higher education in the United States. A two-volume set that Choice magazine hailed as a most important resource in its November 2006 issue, this revised edition features the most up-to-date statistical data available to guide students in making a smart yet practical decision in choosing the university or college of their dreams. In addition, the set serves as an indispensable reference source for parents, college advisors, educators, and public, academic, and high school librarians. These two volumes provide extensive information on 1,900 institutions of higher education, including all accredited colleges and universities that offer at least the baccalaureate degree. This essential resource offers pertinent, statistical data on such topics as tuition, room and board; admission requirements; financial aid; enrollments; student life; library holdings; accelerated and study abroad programs; departments and teaching staff; buildings and grounds; and degrees conferred. Volume two of the set provides four indexes, including an institutional Index, a subject accreditation index, a levels of degrees offered index, and a tabular index of summary data by state. These helpful indexes allow readers to find information easily and to make comparisons among institutions effectively. Also contained within the text are charts and tables that provide easy access to comparative data on relevant topics.

Best 143 Business Schools Nedda Gilbert, Princeton Review (Firm), 2004 Our Best 357 Colleges is the best-selling college guide on the market because it is the voice of the students. Now we let graduate students speak for themselves, too, in these brand-new guides for selecting the ideal business, law, medical, or arts and humanities graduate school. It includes detailed profiles; rankings based on student surveys, like those made popular by our Best 357 Colleges guide; as well as student quotes about classes, professors, the social scene, and more. Plus we cover the ins and outs of admissions and financial aid. Each guide also includes an index of all schools with the most pertinent facts, such as contact information. And we've topped it all off with our school-says section where participating schools can talk back by providing their own profiles. It's a whole new way to find the perfect match in a graduate school.
